ABSTRACT

The idea of a University, defined and redefined across the centuries, has been to provide an environment of learning and engaging in multitudinous discourses which cater to the intellectual and holistic development of young and old minds. That space can only function as a seat of learning when the different constituents can act in an appropriate manner, resulting in the creation of a safe space. In order to understand this idea of a safe space, it is essential to study the prevalence of and awareness about sexual harassment and assault in the university space. Thus, a survey was designed and implemented at the Centre for Asian and Transcultural Studies by a group of students. This presentation would be to discuss the report and listen and learn from all the stakeholders.
